COASTAL RESILIENCE
The dynamic nature of the coastal environment provides a wide variety of challenges for projects involving the impacts of climate changes and sea level rise as well as naturally occurring littoral processes to both the natural and built environment. EA provides the interdisciplinary engineering, scientific, and project delivery solutions to address resilience, vulnerability, and other unique challenges presented by coastal and riverine environments.

- Ecosystem Design
- Fish Passage and Dam Removal
- Marine Services
- Vulnerability Assessment
- Permitting

CONTAMINATED SITE ASSESSMENT AND REMEDIATION
EA performs comprehensive site assessment and remediation support services and has an expertise and reputation for transforming contaminated sites into opportunities toward ensuring its clients can maximize the value of their assets through creative and cost-effective solutions.

CHEMICALS AND CONTAMINANTS OF EMERGING CONCERN
Evolving science or detection capabilities for chemicals that have pathways to enter the environment and present a real or potential unacceptable human health or ecological risk are referred to “contaminants” of emerging concern. For more than a decade, EA has provided Department of Defense, industry, state agencies, and municipalities with innovative solutions to the challenges associated with chemicals and contaminants of emerging concern (CCEC). EA’s CCEC subject matter expert group of scientists, toxicologists, regulatory experts, and engineers is at the forefront of CCEC (including per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances) research related to environmental behavior, toxicity, and effective methods to isolate and treat CCEC that pose risks.
MUNITIONS RESPONSE SERVICES
EA assists our clients by minimizing the explosive hazard and future liabilities from munitions and explosives of concern, including unexploded ordnance, and discarded military munitions, and by the assessment and remediation of human health and ecological risks due to munitions constituents.

INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECT SUPPORT
EA provides comprehensive services nationwide for the identification, documentation, planning, and treatment of cultural resources in entire communities and military installations or single structures. EA completes surveys, resource assessments, resource management plans, stakeholder consultation, agreement documents, and mitigation measures in compliance with state and federal historic preservation regulations.
