RussTech is a full-service, multi-language communications company founded in 1994.

RussTech is dedicated to producing the highest quality language products and providing unsurpassed service to facilitate the international activities of our clients.

RussTech consistently surpasses the most stringent industry requirements for translation and interpreting accuracy.

RussTech Language Services, a woman-owned and operated small business, is one of the foremost U.S. companies offering interpreting services and translations, especially those relating to nuclear technologies and international business. We have the extended capability of working in over one hundred languages, including Chinese, Korean, Japanese, Russian, Spanish, and Ukrainian. As an established corporate entity, RussTech offers the advantage of a dedicated in-house staff, a network of individual translators who have worked with us for many years, and partnering arrangements with other translation agencies. Because of such long-standing relationships, RussTech translators are familiar with our corporate culture and are able to meet the level of quality and consistency we demand. Our in-house glossaries and acronym lists are, we believe, unsurpassed in the industry. In addition, we are particularly proud of our QA program—one of the most demanding in the industry—which enables us to provide polished translations using consistent, verified terminology throughout the many documents generated by a complex project.

SERVICES

SIN: 382-1, Translation

RussTech has specialized in the translation of highly technical documentation since 1994

Your translated documents will read as if they were originally written in the target language.

- RussTech translators work exclusively into their native language
- Our translators and editors are talented professionals who have demonstrated their thorough knowledge of the source language, the ability to write effectively in their native language, and their expertise in specific subjects
- RussTech invests heavily in translator development -- creating unique proprietary glossaries and reference materials and providing continual feedback to improve quality

SIN 382-1, Interpreting

RussTech interpreters have set the standard for highly technical interpreting since 1994

RussTech can provide interpreters who specialize in either consecutive or simultaneous interpretation. Further, we are able to supply the equipment required for simultaneous interpreting

Consecutive Interpreting

Conference and Escort Interpreting

- Our interpreters support you during business meetings, negotiations, conferences, seminars, workshops, as well as off-hours for sightseeing, cultural, and recreational activities
- They provide you with historical and cultural background on your foreign counterparts to help you build a working relationship

Interpreting during Telephone/Video Conference Calls

- Telephone conference calls allow you to meet with your clients regardless of distance or time zone
- If you have video conferencing capabilities, our interpreter will join you in the studio as you meet with your clients face-to-face

Court Interpreting

- Our interpreters work in US courts of law and during legal proceedings when actions involve native speakers of a foreign language
- Court interpreters are responsible for translating the content, tone, and style of the spoken source language with the highest degree of fidelity
- RussTech can assist you in finding competent legal representation in foreign countries and will provide interpreter services for all your meetings

Simultaneous Conference Interpreting

- Simultaneous interpreters work in soundproof booths or open environments using electronic equipment that enables them to hear the speaker and transmit the target language message to listeners -- only a moment behind the speaker
- Because of the high level of concentration required, simultaneous interpreting is one of the most stressful tasks a language professional can perform. Simultaneous interpreters therefore typically work in pairs, spelling one another approximately every 20 minutes
- At the highest levels, simultaneous interpreters work into their native language only

Equipment for Simultaneous Interpreting

RussTech can offer a significant discount on the state-of-the-art equipment and professional on-site technicians required during training seminars, press conferences, corporate meetings, and international conventions for groups of all sizes
