Company History

Blend Supply is part of a family of aviation related businesses started in 1946 by D.W. Broadie at Fort Worth Meacham International Airport. After completing his Aerospace Engineering Degree, Ken Broadie joined his father's company in 1975 and founded Tex-Air Parts to distribute aircraft parts and pilot supplies. Blend Supply was founded by Mr. Broadie in 2001, to distribute aviation coatings, and aircraft parts from offices in Texas, Florida, Pennsylvania, and Illinois. Family owned and operated, Blend Supply takes pride in its long standing reputation at Fort Worth's Meacham International Airport and throughout the United States. Its employees, some of whom have been with the family's companies for over 50 years, take the same pride in that reputation. From their beginnings as a fixed based operation, the collection of companies that the founding family owns and operates today includes aircraft parts distributors, aircraft paint suppliers, pilot supply shops, an aircraft maintenance facility and an aircraft interior shop. With ten offices in four states, and outside sales representation in ten states, these companies provide local service with national coverage. Company management is very involved in industry organizations, including ADMA (Aviation Distributors and Manufacturers Association), and NBAA (National Business Aviation Association), and through its distribution arms, is very well connected with much of the industry.
